The War Today...

By DeWitt MacKenzie
AP War Analyst

DESPITE the dampening effect of the German counter-offensive, we can approach an assay of the year-end military position (as I've been asked to do) from the rock-bottom fact that the Allied cause—on balance—is going well the globe around.

A pencil and paper, with a modicum of unemotional figuring, are all one needs to demonstrate that the United Nations are on the broad highway to victory both in Europe and in the Orient. That conclusion makes allowances for military setbacks like the present in western Europe and the recent Japanese successes in hard-hit China. It takes into account short-comings of the home-front.

When you've added up and made subtractions, the answer is that the Allies can't lose excepting through their own folly.

Having arrived at this point, however, we find that at the best we still face a tough and bloody business which calls for all-out efforts by both the home and military fronts, unless the conflict is to drag on interminably. We must profit by the lesson the Germans are giving us—that the wounded beast fights hardest at the kill. We may find this doubly true with the savage and fanatical Japanese.

One of the burning questions in all minds is how long the European war will last. There's no satisfactory answer to that. It depends first on the outcome of the titanic battle which is growing out of Nazi Marshal Von Rundstedt's counter-offensive.

Gen. Eisenhower still has his chance to administer a knockout to Von Rundstedt and so force an early peace. On the other hand, if the German survives his terribly dangerous thrust into the midst of our Allied strength, then we may find him retreating slowly and regaining his fight in the powerful Siegfried defenses west of the Rhine, thus protracting the war.

Our safest course is to adopt the hard-boiled theory of the War Production board that the Hitlerian war will go on indefinitely. That's not an invitation to pessimism but a safeguard against over-optimism. We Yanks really should get rid of our school-girl fluctuation of emotions and hit a middle course.

Japs Lose Three Warships In Shelling Mindora Isle

ROAD CREWS WORK ON ICY HIGHWAYS

Strong Winds Pile Up Snow, Adding to Traffic Difficulties

High winds that heaped snow on glazed highways today complicated Ohio's recovery from the most crippling ice storm in recent years. Highway department and county road crews worked all night scattering cinders, chemicals and salt on treacherous roads.

The forecast of the weather station at Port Columbus said today would be partly cloudy and colder, with snow flurries in the northeast portion. Tonight would be clear and colder.

Tomorrow, the forecast said, would be cloudy and a little warmer, with rain and snow. Although all main highways were ice-covered, the state highway patrol said all were still open with the exception of an extreme northern section of Route 4. The report listed numerous secondary roads as impassable.

Three and one-half inches of snow fell in Salem yesterday. The mercury dropped slowly to 17 above during the night but climbed back to 22 degrees by noon today.

Temperatures last night ranged from 14 to 31 degrees, compared with yesterday's range of 20 to 37. Clevelanders ploughed through 11 inches of snow that obscured tricky, icy streets. The temperature was 21 degrees with continued cold and snow flurries predicted for the day.

Public transportation was as much as three hours behind schedule. Planes at the city airport were grounded since yesterday with officials trying to clear the lanes for traffic today.

At Columbus, Greyhound bus company officials said virtually all out-of-town service, suspended during the night but climbed back to normal by noon today.

Westbound trains were reported running much as three hours late but eastbound service was near normal.

In the Washington Court House area, most main roads were open today out county highways were reported in a "bad condition." Bus service had been resumed.

Fire Destroys Supply Building In Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Dec. 28.—Fire of undetermined origin last night virtually destroyed a five-story brick building occupied by the Ballard Supply Co., distributors of building materials.

Fire Chief James E. Granger estimated total damage at $250,000, while Company Manager James R. Bagley estimated the building contained $60,000 worth of stock.

Fire Damages Plant

BRYAN, Ohio, Dec. 28.—Fire of undetermined origin today caused damage estimated at $250,000 at the plant of the B. M. Co. plant here. The plant employed 75 persons in the production of furnaces and war products.

Firemen fought the flames for five hours.

three destroyers sunk, a battleship and cruiser damaged.

Two United States warships of undisclosed type were dealt slight damage.

The Japanese shelled Mindoro, Central Philippines, from the China sea Tuesday night, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today.

The Americans bombarded Iwo Jima, Volcano islands, from the Pacific, Tuesday, U. S. date, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced yesterday at Pearl Harbor. That is Wednesday in the time zone where the attack occurred.

The enemy warships—a battleship, cruiser and six destroyers—accomplished "some fruitless and inaccurate shelling" of the Yank invasion scene on southwest Mindoro, MacArthur said. The warships were under attack by Mindoro-based Mitchell bombers and Thunderbolt fighters and by swift patrol-torpedo boats.

A Japanese communiqué today said the naval units bombarded "the enemy (San Jose) airfield and munitions dump and left the nearby area in a veritable sea of fire." The broadcast, recorded by the Federal Communications commission, said one destroyer was "heavily damaged."

The communiqué claimed that on the same night Japanese naval craft off San Jose attacked a United States convoy, sinking four transports, a torpedo boat and two smaller vessels.

Nimitz said the American task force, coordinating its attack with planes of the strategic airforce, Pacific area, pounded coastal and airstrip installations at Iwo Jima, set

REAMS IS CHOSEN AS WELFARE CHIEF

COLUMBUS, Dec. 28.—Governor-elect Frank J. Lausche announced today the appointment of Frazier Reams, Toledo attorney, to become state welfare director when Lausche takes office on Jan. 8.

The appointment was the first to be made to the governor-elect's cabinet.

Reams will succeed Herbert Mooney of Woodfield who has been director of the Welfare department for the last year and a half.

Lausche said the first task of the new welfare director would be "the fulfilling of the state's obligation for the care of mental patients."

Reams was one of the candidates defeated by Lausche last spring for the Democratic nomination for governor. He never before has held a state office.

Slayer of Twins Given New Trial By Tribunal

COLUMBUS, Dec. 28.—Henry William Hagert, 18, Cleveland youth convicted of first degree murder in the Aug. 12, 1943, slaying of James and Charles Collins, 12-year-old twins, yesterday was granted a new trial by the Ohio Supreme court.

By a four to three decision reversing the Cuyahoga county common pleas court conviction, the state tribunal held that a finding by jury in preliminary hearing that the defendant in a criminal case is sane is not admissible on behalf of the state at the trial in rebuttal of evidence offered by the defendant in support of an insanity defense. Hagert pleaded insanity.

ARMY SEIZES MAIL ORDER HOUSE AGAIN

Montgomery-Ward Properties In Seven Cities Are Taken Over

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Dec. 28.—The Army seized Montgomery Ward and Company properties in seven cities today under a presidential order in a showdown on the company's refusal to comply with War Labor board directives.

Maj. Gen. Joseph W. Byron, director of the special service division, Army Service Forces, Washington, accompanied by his staff, served the seizure order on Sewell Avery, Ward's chairman of the board, in Avery's private office.

Exchange Greetings

Avery greeted Gen. Byron pleasantly and they shook hands. The seizure came as the CIO United Retail, Wholesale and Retail Employees of America began the second strike at Ward's Chicago plants this year. It was the second Army seizure, too, the first coming last April 26 when an aid to the department of Commerce took over.

On April 27 Avery was carried bodily from his office by two soldiers after the government contended he refused to cooperate in the seizure procedure.

Gen. Byron issued the following statement in seizing the mail order concern's properties:

"In accordance with the provisions of an executive order, the War department has taken possession of certain properties of Montgomery Ward and Company, Inc., in Chicago, Detroit, St. Paul, Denver, Jamaica, L. I. N. Y., Portland, Ore., and Santa Rafael Calif.

"These properties will be operated under the terms of the directive orders of the National War Labor board as specified in the executive order.

"It is the sincere hope of the War department that it will have the cooperation of every executive and every employee of Montgomery Ward and Company, Inc., in the fulfillment of its mission, and that it will be possible in the near future for the War department to relinquish control of this enterprise so that those of us who have been assigned to this task may return to our urgent war duties."

Lengthy Dispute
In the seven cities concerned long standing labor disputes have existed between the union and Ward's. The union contended that in each locality the company refused to follow directives. The WLB sent the cases to Fred M. Vinson, economic stabilization director, a week ago and he evidently advised President Roosevelt to seize the properties.

Maintenance of union membership was a fundamental issue in the cases, Avery having refused to

With No Jail, County Still Runs Up Big Prisoner Bills

LISBON, Dec. 28.—The county jail problem popped out of the box again yesterday when Sheriff George Hayes released figures on prisoner transportation for the past year.

Since January of this year the sheriff or his deputies have transported four people to the Feeble Minded hospital in Columbus; four others to the Bureau of Juvenile Research in Columbus; 29 persons to the Massillon State hospital; 11 to the Boys Industrial school at Lancaster; one to the Women's reformatory at Marysville; seven to the Ohio State reformatory at Mansfield; five to the Ohio penitentiary at Columbus; two to Gallipolis and one to Federal hospital at Chillicothe.

The total mileage driven in conveying these persons to the various institutions was 13,796 miles.

By comparison more than 23,124 miles were driven in transporting other prisoners to and from the Mehorning county jail at Youngstown because Columbiana county has been without a county jail since 1940.

Sheriff Hayes estimates the cost of transporting these prisoners to be an average of eight cents per mile, including car depreciation and

G-suits (the G stands for gravity) have been adopted by the Army Air Forces to prevent fighter pilots from "blacking out" (losing consciousness) in steep dives. The anti-gravity pneumatic pants apply pressure to the pilot's abdomen and legs, preventing the blood from pooling in the lower extremities. The pants may be inflated, as demonstrated above, by lung-power or mechanically.

Surprise Attack Leaves Towering Fires In Industrial Area

By VERN HAUGLAND
21ST BOMBER COMMAND, Saitan, Dec. 28.—Superfortress bombs pummeled a surprised Tokyo for an hour and a half Wednesday, and one returning pilot said his formation alone laid a pattern of explosives two blocks wide and several long across an important industrial area where no missile "could fail to hit a target."

The Musashima factory of the Nakajima aircraft company was the primary target but the first B-29 formation, led by Capt. Vance Black of Fairfax, Okla., and pushed by a terrific tailwind, overshot the plant. They said they apparently hit the factory somewhere in its 50 acres of one-story workshops.

Early photographs showed at least a dozen new bomb hits in the plant. Pictures of budding bomb bursts gave rise to hope later photographs would show heavy damage in the works, one of the keys to Japan's aircraft production.

One giant American plane was lost over Tokyo but the Superforts shot down perhaps the largest number of enemy planes yet destroyed over the island of Honshu. The total bag has not been officially announced.

The Japanese apparently were caught by surprise. Early B-29 formations found both anti-aircraft fire and interception light, but later arrivals encountered heavy opposition.

Tokyo's industrial center was swept by great fires, returning aircraft.

SHASTEEN, DEPUTY SHERIFF, RESIGNS

William A. Shasteen of East Palestine, office deputy for Sheriff George Hayes for the past four years, is retiring at noon Saturday. His resignation which has been in the sheriff's hands since November was accepted Wednesday.

Shasteen was formerly engaged in the insurance business and is returning to that vocation in Palestine.

Hayes announced that Miss Rita Smith of Lisbon, who has been employed in the office for the past year as stenographer, will assume the duties of office deputy. No new appointments are contemplated.

Storm Hurts Output At Ravenna Arsenal

YOUNGSTOWN, Dec. 28.—Wednesday's storm has seriously reduced production of large calibre ammunition at the Ravenna Ordnance center, it was revealed here today.

So many persons either were unable or did not want to report to work that production dropped sharply, center officials say.

The center sent scores of telegrams to district employees today, asking them to report to work so ammunition can be made for the fighting forces.

Hundreds of men had to be kept overtime at Youngstown steel mills because of absenteeism and tardiness.

Draft Boards Instructed To Induct Plants' 'Chronic Absentees'

Draft boards have been instructed to call up for induction deferred war workers who are "chronic absentees."

Col. C. W. Goble, state director of Selective Service, announced local boards have been directed to require employers to file, with their deferment requests, information concerning the attendance record of the registrant for at least 90 days.

Boards also were ordered to require employers "to notify them immediately in the event a registrant becomes a chronic absentee during his period of deferment," and added:

"If, in the opinion of the local board, the report of the employer fails to indicate that the registrant is regularly engaged in an activity in support of the war effort, steps should be taken to process the registrant for induction."

The state director told the boards requirements of the attendance report was a step "to further assist in meeting the expanding needs of production of vital war materials."

Goble reminded boards that Selective Service regulations give them the "responsibility to see that registrants do not leave their employment unless it has been determined by the local board that it is in the best interest of the war effort for them to do so."

Couple Appeals Ruling In Rent Eviction Case

Howard and Virginia Green of Salem appealed to common pleas court Wednesday a decision of T. R. Whinnery, Perry township justice of the peace, ordering them to vacate the premises of Lloyd and Mary Wank. Wank filed the action in Whinnery's court Dec. 14.

Grounds of the appeal were that James Willey, OPA rent director and chief rent attorney for the Wheeling-Steubenville defense area had granted a clearance for the eviction Nov. 17, 1944. Appellants say that the clearance was granted on the ground of nuisance but that the action in the magistrate's court was for overstaying their leave.

The transcript of the lower court record shows that the appellant's attorney merely appeared at the trial, moved to dismiss the suit and then walked out.

This is first suit appealed in the county based on rulings of the OPA granting the right to bring a forcible and detainer suit.

German Flank Sagging Under Heavy Attack

By JAMES M. LONG

PARIS, Dec. 28.—American forces cutting into both sides of the Von Rundstedt bulge at its thinnest neck have fought to within less than 20 miles of a junction, 36-hour old reports from the front said tonight.

The whole southern flank of the enemy salient from Bastogne to the German border yielded slowly. Doughboys and tanks crossed the Sure river at four places and threw the enemy back into the Reich at two places in the Echternach area at the eastern end of the wedge.

The thin relief corridor to Bastogne held firm against German infantry and armored attack.

The Germans were buffeted back further in hard fighting near Grandmenil and Marche, points 20 miles away.

Part of the German spearhead which had driven deepest into Belgium at Celles was encircled and being hammered into disintegration by a ring of guns and armor, and another pocket along the underbelly of the salient was receiving similar treatment.

The probing army that had pushed close to Cimey, 15 miles from Namur in the northwestern tip of the bulge, had been beaten back until the battleline ran seven to eight miles southeast of the village.

The main fighting in the Celles area was in the vicinity of Verre, two and one half miles to the southeast.

Along the southern flank the Americans continued to gain and were across, up to or almost up to the whole line of the Sure river from the Bastogne area to the German frontier. Where they were not across stream they held the high ground on the south side.

The village of Liefrange, 10 miles southeast of Bastogne, was seized in one crossing north of the village of Bonnel.

It was too early to foresee the outcome, for the Americans in their counter-attack faced formidable obstacles.

But there were clear indications the bold Nazi bid for a great December victory had butted into serious trouble.

The German army had been held for more than 48 hours up to Wednesday dawn without a significant gain.

Under Heavy Shellfire
German pockets were surrounded in the western head of the enemy offensive and on the southern flank and were under tempests of shellfire.

Southwest of Echternach the Germans were retreating and northwest of that southern hinge of the salient, they were repairing an escape bridge under American fire and were preparing to pull back into Germany across the Sure.

A bit farther northwest 250 Germans were swimming the Our river back into Germany.

Three of the American crossings of the Sure, which Berlin broadcasts said were by the U. S. Third army under the command of Lt. Gen. George S. Patton, were near Bonnel, 2 1/2 miles northwest of Echternach. The fourth was three miles northeast of Martelange. All the crossings were within about 15 miles of Bastogne.

Von Rundstedt's armored patrol probes toward the Meuse were being beaten badly, though one thrust out eight miles south of Celles to the vicinity of Beaurange, 3 1/2 miles from the French border.

The tide of battle turns
The tide of battle east of the Meuse definitely has turned with depleted enemy armor almost everywhere on the defensive," said a field dispatch.

One German pocket of armor and infantry was being pounded to pieces by encircling American tanks and artillery pieces between Celles, deepest western penetration of the enemy, and Rochefort, 10 miles to the southeast. About two enemy battalions were in the trap.

Another German pocket was surrounded at Beaufort, six miles

How Circumstances Alter Cases

To the extent that some of the voices now demanding a shakeup in the military organization and claiming great potential benefits from the drastic shakeup in the state department are the same ones which were screaming in the presidential campaign that nothing must be disturbed because it would be fatal "to take out a winning pitcher," approximately half the voters who went to the polls Nov. 7 are now entitled to a horse laugh.

There has been a great disillusionment since then. Marshal Stalin, it appears, is not really a Roosevelt Democrat after all, but just what he always was—the dictator of Russia. The winning pitcher is still in the box, but the home team in Germany is putting on a late rally. The state department, which was supposed to have everything under control, is undergoing perhaps as thorough a post-election housecleaning as it would have undergone had Thomas E. Dewey been the winner, instead of Franklin D. Roosevelt. And the arsenal and larder of democracy, which had been assured by the commander-in-chief that everything was without fault, now is informed brusquely that there are shortages of so many things that it suddenly becomes a question what became of the statistics used in the campaign.

As the late Wendell L. Willkie once said, we all should remember that orators say a lot of things in campaigns they don't really mean.

Ideals Need No Charter

Discussion over the status of the Atlantic Charter as a non-existent affirmation of ideals, as far as any formal document is concerned, is a tempest, in a diplomatic teapot.

The ideals of freedom and self-determination of peoples need no charter. They are like the Ten Commandments and the Golden Rule, which do not exist as formal documents, officially signed and bearing seals, but nevertheless have a vast and devoted following.

The Atlantic Charter was an affirmation of "common principles," issued at a time when the United States, still nominally at peace, was being drawn closer to Great Britain, then desperately fighting to stave off the pressure of a closing ring of enemies. Less than a month before, Russia had been invaded by Germany. The following December, Japan was to attack the United States. The final great alliances of the war were in the making. The Charter reflected the highest hopes of this republic—hopes to which Prime Minister Churchill readily subscribed in mid-summer of 1941. It was agreed that no aggrandizement, territorial or otherwise, was sought; that no territorial changes that did not accord "with the freely expressed wishes of the people concerned" were sought; and that the United States and Great Britain respected the "right of all peoples to choose the form of government under which they will live".

These were noble ideals in 1941. They are still noble ideals. If the situation now seems to call for trimming and hedging by other governments, that has no bearing on what Americans thought then and still think. In the last analysis, we can be custodians only of our own integrity.

Unlucky Gamblers

The great gamble on which Germany is staking its last hopes in western Europe is giving the Allies some of the most desperate moments of the war. They do not believe the Germans can win, but they have been reminded once more of the possibility.

On the side of reassurance is the Germans' record as unlucky gamblers. In World War I they gambled on unrestricted submarine warfare and lost. They gambled in that war and this one on the United States remaining neutral, or if not neutral, ineffectual.

They gambled in 1918 on major offensives which, turned back, so weakened them that defeat became a certainty. They gambled at Stalingrad and lost. In 1941 they gambled on Paris and lost the first battle of the Marne. They gambled on the aerial blitz to shatter Great Britain in 1940 and lost. They gambled on the Japanese as allies, and Japan disappointed them. They gambled on Italy, too.

Fortunately, the Allies have worked and fought their way to a position where most of their military gambling now takes place with the odds in their favor. Even the invasion of Europe, one of history's most hazardous military projects, was undertaken with so much foresight and material that it was a virtual certainty to succeed. By contrast, what the Germans now are undertaking—to drive back the Allies in the west—is a virtual certainty to fail because the odds make it a last-chance venture.

The Stars Say

For Friday, December 29

WHILE there will be much excitement and stirring of energies and faculties, with agitation and commotion, yet there is little prospect of anything of constructive and practical accomplishment. With impulses, emotions, inner unrest and other tensions and stresses, there may be conflict, strife or angry encounters, really having an unhealthy and depressing reaction on the general state of the health and other material conditions. There may be a persistent effort to overcome obstacles and to defeat schemes, snares and other illicit entanglements, inspiring a wish to expose such irregularities, yet little progress is in sight.

The Birthday Forecast

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of much activity, with stress, tension and agitation, although not of any practical or constructive achievement. Under the impetus of subtle, strange and emotional incitements there may be a tendency to overdo in the way of vanquishing obstacles, combating strife, and putting over ambitious projects by industry, application and determination. This may induce happy reaction on the health as well as on clear vision to plan and elaborate proper ways and means for progress and success. Also, there might be other anxieties connected with family, friends or co-workers. Be alert to all sorts of schemes, snares and complications of an irregular character. And be not carried away by excited emotions or impulses. A child born on this day will have much energy and ambition, with determination and integrity, but may have much to regulate, compose and turn into productive channels against tenacious obstacles.

Where Are the Smokes?

By James Thrasher

This piece may add much to the growing literature on the cigaret shortage, but at least it's going to be different. For it is not going to attempt to tell you what is causing the dearth of smokes.

In fact, it is going to take issue with those who have assured you that the responsibility for this small-caliber crisis in the lives of millions belongs to government control of the tobacco crop, shortage of tobacco, scarcity of manpower, the black market, hoarding, or interperate smoking of epidemic proportions.

This piece is going to take issue with those explanations without offering any new ones. But it is going to cite some figures, from sources deep in the heart of the tobacco industry, which reveal that there were fewer cigarets potentially available to civilians at the end of 1944 than at the same time in 1943, but which account for, support or condone the current threat of cigaret extinction.

Cigaret manufacturers have certain military obligations. They have a quota to provide for the Army and Navy, for Red Cross distribution to service personnel, and in much smaller amounts, for the British. These obligations are taken care of first.

The manufacturers recently claimed that they were up to date on their orders, and the government did not deny the contention.

In 1944 the big companies turned out 70 per cent of the previous year's civilian production, or seven packs for every 1943 carton. These are the companies that make the brands that most people called for back in the days when we could be choosy.

That isn't too bad. And when you add in the manufacturers of the fags that we have been smoking recently, the picture is potentially even brighter. For all American cigaret companies turned out 19 packs in 1944 for every 20 in 1943.

The military quota is generous. And if the full quota had been in the hands of the ultimate consumer last year, there would have been 50 cigarets a day for every man and woman in uniform, smoker or non-smoker. Instead, there was a time when men overseas were rationed to two packs a week, or less than six cigarets a day.

It may be that shipping and transportation shortages and bottlenecks have held up the flow of smokes to the fighting fronts. But that doesn't account for what has happened to the civilian supply.

Even with all the talk of more smoking, black markets and hoarding—and how are you going to hoard 'em when you can't buy 'em?—it's hard to figure out what has happened to 95 per cent of an almost-normal 1943 supply to make the tobaccoists' shelves look like Mother Hubbard's cupboard.

And so, we repeat, where are the cigarets? That isn't a rhetorical question. We'd really like to know.

About all some people will get out of their New Year resolutions is a chance to swear.

Look out for the fellow who gets too big to ever feel small!

Penicillin and the Sulfa Drug

BY LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

PENICILLIN has captured the popular imagination, and certainly most of the attention in the news about the new germ-destroying chemicals.

Yet an impartial review of the whole subject would indicate that

Dr. Clending will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

not only more progress has been made in the study of the other groups of germicidal drugs, the sulfa drugs, but that they are really the more practical and serviceable.

The Public's Attitude
Public imagination is an unaccountable phenomenon, although here is some reason for the attitude the public has formed about the penicillin and the sulfa drugs.

When the sulfa drugs were announced in 1935, they were immediately recognized as successful in many infections. They cut the mortality rate of pneumonia in half. They made obsolete many serums and antitoxins that the medical profession had been halfheartedly trying to endorse for years—such as anti-pneumococcus serum, anti-streptococcus serum, against scarlet fever and antitoxin against diphtheria and meningitis.

Then, all of a sudden, along came penicillin. It had a romantic story behind it. It is derived from a mold, and bacteria of certain kinds of bacteria will not grow on cultures near that mold. A comparatively small grant of money for research sufficed to develop and perfect its actions.

Fairy Tales
Best of all, perhaps, for making the public avid for it was that they couldn't get any of it. They heard these fairy-like tales of cures that were done in the large medical centers by special researchers who had been granted a small supply. The armed forces had it and every body was glad of that.

But when the boy next door fell sick and they couldn't get any penicillin. So human nature being what it is, everybody has been wanting what it couldn't get, and the reputation of penicillin has gone sky high.

Now that we are getting supplies of the product pretty generally available we find it has some faults.

One is, that it is not absorbed by mouth, so it has to be given hypodermically either in a muscle or a vein. Then it is excreted so rapidly that it hardly stays in the body at all, and has to be given over and over in high quantities, or given continuously. And except in a somewhat limited group of cases, it is not any more effective than the sulfa drugs.

Sulfa Research

In the meantime research on the sulfa drugs, while not so well advertised, has gone forward rapidly. The sulfa drugs are absorbed by mouth, an enormous advantage in any drug, and they stay in the body and build up effective blood concentrations so strong that they kill off germs in all fluids and crannies of the body.

The attempt of research in this department has been to produce a drug which has the lowest toxic or poisonous qualities even when given in large amounts, and the highest germ-killing qualities. The drugs developed a few years ago, such as sulfanilamide, and sulfapyridine, while enormous improvements on what we had before, were highly toxic, and produced such disagreeable by-effects that they had to be continuously watched.

The latest drug of the series, a product of synthetic chemistry, is sulfamerazine. It does not produce anywhere near as much of the nausea and bluing of the skin as the earlier ones of the series, and it enters the blood so rapidly, that concentrations of a ratio of 50 can quickly be obtained, whereas the danger point of the older drugs was a ratio of 10 or 15. And it is a germ killer extraordinary. And your doctor can get it anywhere in ten minutes.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clending has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped, with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clending, 235 E. 45th st., New York City. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining Weight," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Painful Hygiene," and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

LEAVES FROM A WAR
CORRESPONDENT'S NOTEBOOK

by Hal Boyle

IN BELGIUM VILLAGE — Over hills crowned with gray patches of dried snow and green cedar trees came the faint boom of German guns.

In the morning the sound was no louder than the soft thud of a falling snowball, but as the day wore on it became louder. It beat irregularly like a weary heart. It grew louder. Then, although it still was miles away, it became so loud that windows rattled faintly in the long hospital room and the major looked up from his task.

He was a medical officer, and there was no one else in the room but a nurse — a young lieutenant with brown hair and disturbing hazel eyes.

They were checking patients' charts. But the patients were gone. They all had been "walking cases" — patients able to move to the convalescent hospitals in the rear.

Only few moments before, they had bundled together shaving kits and toilet articles and left. They had taken their janded nerves, upset stomach, closed bronchial tubes and infected throats further back, out of the fighting zone. They were sick men who had given up their neat beds for wounded men who would mark them with blood.

Two Hospitals Overrun

"We first get these out of the way before they start bringing them in," said the major, nodding toward a small stack of patients' charts needing final notations.

"We won't keep any patients here from now on except these too desperately wounded to be moved," said the major, explaining what use would be made of this quiet room which war had turned from a Belgian schoolroom into a hospital ward.

"We'll be plenty busy."

"You know, the Germans already have overrun two of our hospitals."

In the first one we got our patients and our own people out all right but we lost all of our equipment."

You could tell how much it hurt the major for those thousands of yards of white bandages, chests of precious medicines, scalpels of sharp, scarce steel, to fall into enemy hands.

"We don't know what happened to the second hospital the Germans took," said the major. "So far no one has come back. We just don't know yet."

The major knew some medic had been in that line of 150 men which one German armored column had ordered into a field and machine-gunned. There was no fear in his eyes nor in the eyes of the nurse. But they both knew that if the Germans broke through to this village they couldn't leave the helpless wounded men who would die without their care.

The major looked down the room as he finished the last chart. Blankets were folded neatly on waiting cots. From one pillow stuck the dog-eared page of a broken, two-bit detective novel.

Guns boomed in distant hills—and the beds were waiting.

ROMANTIC MASQUERADE

by MARIE BLIZARD

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

Daphne felt very confident as she lingered over her breakfast and her thoughts, and then she remembered Mrs. Gates. She was to call for her at eleven.

Steve usually came about 1 p. m. she must be very careful now. It wouldn't do at all to have the village know that Mrs. Daphne Wiloughby Abruzzi was courting her gardener. The fact that her intentions couldn't have been more honorable wouldn't help at all.

Daphne got into a lemon-colored wool frock, tied a bandana over her hair and put on her rain coat. Before she went downstairs, she carried a bowl of bright-hued similes from her own room into the west bedroom. She stopped downstairs long enough to light a fire. Everything must look nice and cheery for Mrs. Gates. Everything must be as nice for everyone else as it was for Daphne herself. She would like to have stood on the steps of the City Hall and tossed gold pieces about. If Daphne had a quail about anyone that morning, she would have been uneasy about Mrs. Amelia Gates, and if there weren't canaries singing their heads off in her heart, it would have been heavy.

The days of her privacy were over. But Mrs. Gates, Daphne decided during their brief ride from the Holly home, was going to be all right. She was Scotch, friendly, not loquacious. She was what Daphne had done, nor sentimental over her son. She launched into no confidences when Daphne came upon her unpacking her small trunk and setting up her gallery of family photographs.

She said directly, "The green tomatoes in the kitchen ought to be put up at once. I'll get at them this afternoon. Soon's I get my things put away I'll see what's needed."

Daphne stood in the doorway. "There's a box of mason jars in the cellar."

Mrs. Gates tied on a large white apron. "I'd best get them now. They'll need to be sealed."

"It's a heavy box, Mrs. Gates. You couldn't carry it up, but Steve—that's my man—Daphne swallowed hard—"that is, the man who helps around here. He'll be here soon. You ask him to bring up the box. And anything else you want done. I'm sure he'll be glad."

Daphne felt as if she were smothering. Then she left, saying, "I'll find things for your lunch. I'll be out the rest of the day."

It was better to go to Red Cross—much better than going hot and cold because Steve was around, and asking an idiot of herself when she told him she had something to say to him. She had plenty to say but, she wouldn't say it. Daphne feared she would babble and blurt like a school-girl asking a handsome professor why he couldn't see she was languishing for him.

So Daphne went to Red Cross where she spent most of the day. Later she went shopping for such important things as two-cent stamps, and a packet of needles and a bottle of iodine, and then, unable to stay away a moment longer, drove home swiftly and walked into her house as the clock struck six. Something delicious was cooking, but it was not chili sauce.

"I'll have to make it tomorrow," Miss Daphne. Mrs. Gates' explanation, "I couldn't find the jars in the cellar."

"Why didn't you ask Steve about them?" Daphne thought her voice sounded perfectly natural. "He's probably put them away somewhere."

"There's nary a man been here today, lass," declared Mrs. Gates, shaking her head.

"I see," Daphne walked towards the door, her lower lip between her teeth.

"Is the hired man supposed to come every day?" asked Mrs. Gates.

"Yes," Daphne replied. "He's supposed to work here every day."

Mrs. Gates finally observed that you couldn't depend on any hired man these days, adding, "I'll give him a piece of my mind when he comes around."

"No," said Daphne, with a peculiar mirthless smile. "I'll give him a piece of mine—if he ever comes back."

"Does he drink, ma'am?" "I don't think so."

"You owe him any money?" "Only four days' wages."

"If you owe him money, he'll be back."

"I wonder," Daphne said to herself. Serving Daphne the first real meal she'd had in her house in some time, Mrs. Gates observed, "The wind's up again. Looks like the rain and wind's never going to stop. Minds me of autumn in Cornwall."

Yes, the wind was up again, moaning around the house and the shutter began its insistent banging again.

After dinner, Daphne went into the living-room and picked up a book, and was fifty pages into it without remembering a word she'd read, when she heard a new sound through the racket of the storm. It was a faint hammering somewhere in back of the house.

A slow smile spread over Daphne's face. She listened, put down her book, went into the hall, and donned her raincoat. She stopped long enough to get a flashlight, then went out onto the back porch, opening the door softly.

Daphne clicked the light, aiming it at the window to the left of the porch.

It circled Steve in glistening raincoat, hammer in hand, standing at the top of the ladder. He blinked and tried to peer below.

"Won't you come into my parlor?" she inquired sweetly.

"Thanks," Steve replied, returning to his job. "I don't need the light. I'm accustomed to the dark. Anyway, the job's nearly done."

"When you come down, I want to talk to you," Daphne said tartly as she reentered her house.

A minute or two later, she was standing with her back to the hearth, her hands clasped behind her, when Steve came to the arch of the living-room. Mrs. Gates was taking out her coffee tray.

"Mrs. Gates, this is Steve," Daphne said.

Mrs. Gates nodded and when she left the room, he asked, "Your chaperone?"

"My housekeeper."

"You wished to talk with me?" "I did."

"I said I'd fix the blind. It's fixed," he paused, then said, "I'm leaving, quitting the job—Mrs. Abruzzi. My work here is finished. The wood's in. The garden laid down."

"There are other things," Daphne suggested, "there was the rethinking of the playroom in the cellar, but—"

"But?"

"But if you don't wish to work here anymore, that's up to you. Right now I don't have enough cash in the house but I'll leave your wages with Mrs. Gates tomorrow."

"Thank you." The man could incline his head an inch and make it appear a costly gesture.

"Wait," she turned her back when she heard him stop. "I—"

Steve's last night. If that's the reason—

"It's a good reason. n't it?" he asked quietly.

Daphne kicked the embers with her slipper. "I need help and you need work. There isn't any reason why we shouldn't forget."

"I don't agree with you."

"I'm sorry it happened, then."

"I'm sorry, too. I completely lost my head. I apologize."

"Please don't." She worked so hard to keep her voice in check, to keep Steve from hearing the tears in it, that she spoke tightly, coldly.

"If you think you need someone to look after your place, or your fires—"

"Yes," she said eagerly. "I'll send one of the Bronner boys around. Goodnight, Madam."

Steve went without so much as a backward glance at her, and was probably half way home when she had said struck her and she ran through the hall to call back.

He was not Steve Bronner! Then who was he?

Little Women Styles

By EPSIE KINARD

NEW YORK—The answer to the long-despairing wail of the little woman who wants her clothes to look more dignified than cute are fashions designed for the pint-sized figure—five feet plus two to three inches tall—and scaled to its petite proportions.

If you're the petite type and want a suit or a dress with flair, symmetry and chic, you no longer have to go home disconsolately lugging a Junior Miss frock or a Sleepy Joe tweed. Nor will you have to take a more adult-styled suit or dress that literally swallows you, to the fitter to have it whittled down to size.

Available in your own petite size—and not "out" or "half sizes"—either—are styles launched by New York designers, who have studied your needs and have scaled clothes to your proportions. To fit you to a "T" they've added an inch to bosom and hip fullness, subtracted an inch in length of waist, widened shoulders, narrowed necks, belted waists more narrowly and given you skirts that are draped, gathered or pleated without foreshortening the figure.

Results are suits and dresses like the two models above. The suit of burnt orange wool (left) with a U-shaped neckline simply accessorized with a bright Paisley scarf, is snugly fitted for that exquisitely neat look which every small woman knows is her biggest asset. The dress at the right of royal blue crepe has shoulders widened rather than squared, sophisticated lines in treatment of neck and top type skirt and a narrow belt to show off a small waistline without dividing the figure.

Drop Bioff Charges

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 28.—Federal Judge Ralph E. Jenney has dismissed an indictment which charged that William Bioff, former Hollywood union representative, swindled some $80,000 in income taxes (or 1936 and 1937).

A letter from Attorney General Francis Biddle's office said the prosecution should be dropped because Bioff's conviction in New York in 1941 on charges of extorting money from motion picture companies was under virtually the same set of facts and a second prosecution would not be necessary.

Copper and Lead Shortages To Hit Use By Civilians

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—Shortages of two important war metals, copper and lead, threatened today to cause further civilian belt-tightening in 1945.

Because of sharply rising army demands for bullets and artillery shells, the Office of Civilian Requirements may be called upon to give back half the tonnage of copper brass mill products allotted to it for the manufacture of civilian goods next quarter, WPB officials disclosed.

A 40 per cent cut in civilian use of lead, required in a War Production board order announced last night, was explained as necessary to protect the government's stockpile of that metal, which has dwindled to less than one month's wartime consumption.

The lead curtailment will affect storage batteries, paint, tetraethyl for civilian gasoline, and other items. The copper deficit is expected to hit hooks, eyes, fasteners, and—to a severe degree—shotgun shells and cartridges used by farmers and ranchers to protect livestock and crops.

Aside from copper and lead, the metal picture was described as the "easiest supply situation" in two years.

Steel supplies were reported to be "fairly well balanced" with prospective demand, and aluminum "relatively easy." Only about half the country's plant capacity for producing ingot aluminum is being used.

The steel plate supply was considerably eased by a big drop in maritime commission requirements for the January-February-March quarter.

The carbon steel allotment to office of civilian requirements for consumer goods manufacture and other civilian activities, has been cut from 228,000 tons this quarter to 163,800 tons next quarter.

In addition, 250,000 tons have been allotted for civilian goods manufactured under the "spot" authorization plan. WPB officials stated, however, they did not believe half the tonnage would be used, because of limitations on the spot program to conserve manpower.

EUROPE FOOD SUPPLY BLEAK

1944-45 Quantities Lower In All Countries Except Russia

(By United Press)
WASHINGTON—European agriculture is increasingly feeling the effects of war, an agriculture department survey reports.
Continental Europe, with the exception of Russia, will have a somewhat smaller food supply during 1944-45 than last year and only 85 per cent of the prewar supply, the department report showed.
The 1944 harvest was poorer even than the subnormal harvest of 1943, the office of foreign agricultural relations said, with a decline in the production of grains, sugar beets and vegetable oils. Meat production increased slightly but no improvement has occurred in the output of milk and eggs.

German Imports Down
If Germany must live exclusively on home-produced food in 1944-45, the average calorie intake per person will drop 15 per cent. The deterioration of the German food situation was attributed partly to decreased imports, which have furnished 12 per cent of the nation's food supply.

The extent to which Germany may be able to offset reduced crops and losses in supplies from abroad by withdrawals from stocks and by a discontinuance in food shipments to Finland, Belgium and Norway cannot be predicted, the department said.

The Russian food situation is improved over 1943-44 but will remain tight for the civilian population, according to the survey. Responsible for the improvement were a good harvest, termination of German requisitions and prospects of obtaining food surpluses from the Danube Basin which formerly went to Germany.

Countries Listed
The outlook in other European countries:

France—Larger supplies from home-produced food. However, unless transportation facilities are restored, substantial imports will be required if present low rations are to be honored.

Italy—More food than last year but domestic supplies still will fall short of quantities needed to cover even small wartime rations.
Greece—The food supply situation "remains bad" and large imports will be required if low consumption levels in cities and deficit farm areas are to improve.

Belgium—Imports will be needed if low-level consumption of war years is to increase.

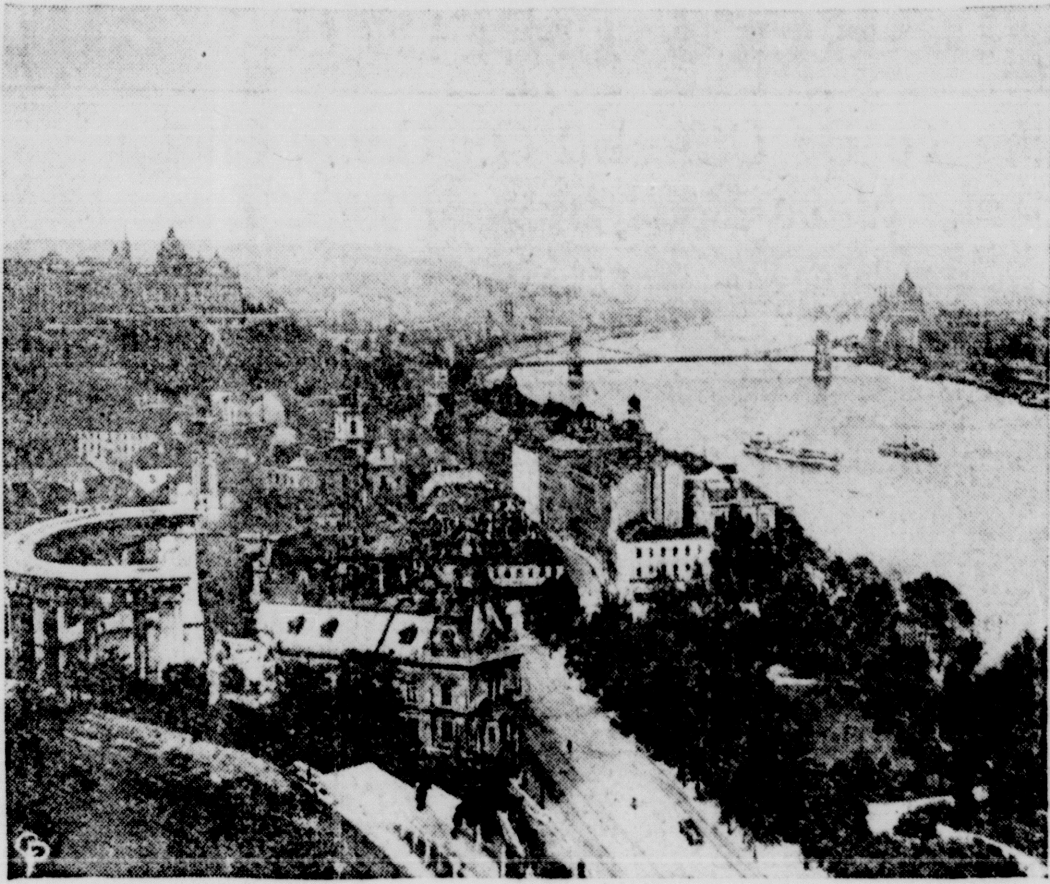

The Netherlands—Food supplies may be sufficient for some consumption level as last year. However, flooding and military operations are likely to have serious effects on distribution.
Finland—The difficult situation resulting from the cessation of German imports has been offset somewhat by relief shipments from Sweden.

Polish Outlook Bad
Poland—"An already extremely unsatisfactory food situation is likely to be aggravated further" by increased German requisition of farm products.

Denmark—Food supplies should be near last year's high level unless increased exports to Germany are required.

Injuries And Illness Plauging Quakers Before Canton Fray

Two-Year Old Grid 'Jinx' Catches Up With Quintet

SALEM	PROBABLE STARTING LINEUPS	CANTON LEHMAN
Schaeffer	Forward	Biel
Kelly	Forward	Wright
Brian	Center	Jackson
Appelisan	Guard	Wuske
Lamney	Guard	Cox

Reserve game, 7:30; Varsity, 8:45.

Plagued once again by injuries and illness like Salem High football teams have been for the past two seasons, Coach Robert Miller's Quakers will take on one of their toughest assignments in the High school gymnasium when Canton Lehman's Polar Bears come to visit tomorrow night.

For two straight seasons injuries have worried Gridman Ben Barrett, and now the worry has set in on basketball.

First it was Norm Smith, who suffered a broken leg in football season and wasn't in playing shape by the time the cage opened. Then Mutt Schaeffer had difficulty with a "trick knee" and was on the questionable list and Walt Brian had more trouble with a "trick" shoulder.

Last week, Jimmie Appelisan was taken away from practice and game play by a skin malady that originated during football season.

Francis Lanney, troubled with an acute "charley horse" and blood clot in one leg, has been taking treatments for over a month.

Things were bad from the start—and now they are going right on along the same pattern.

Appelisan hopes to—and probably will—start tomorrow. But things are still gloomy. Don Fifth, a valuable replacement for Jimmie, yesterday suffered a sprained ankle and will be out this week and possibly next.

Should Appelisan find himself not up to a full game, Coach Miller will have to use Bill Stouff and Ben Brudery in the vacancy and they should be on reserve for other emergencies.

Further trouble was encountered when Brian's shoulder slipped out of place again in practice yesterday. Although the injury doesn't keep Canton Lehman last night edged Akron Central for their fifth straight win in as many tries, 41-39. Central, although stocked with lettermen, hasn't won a start in six games.

Brian from playing, it hinders his reach and pains him considerably in action.

However, in spite of all the sad tidings of early week's workouts, the locals are priming with enthusiasm for this important test of what their tourney chances may be like in the spring.

Always a top tourney team, Coach Jim Robinson's crew has already posted five wins, knocking off Akron East, Ostrville, Cleveland Garfield, Wooster and Akron Central by lopsided margins. The Bears average close to 50 points while their opponents don't reach the 30 average.

Robinson, a Mount Union graduate, has two veterans, Forwards Bill Biel and Lewy Wright, back from last year. He also is using three from the last season's reserve team. At center Norm Jackson will face Walt Brian. Guards are Jim Wuske and Pete Cox, both newcomers to the varsity.

So far this year the top scorers have been Wright, Cox and Biel on the starting five with 32, 29 and 25 points each. Another high scorer is Dean Becker, who starts alternately with Wright at the one guard post. He has posted 28 markers this year.

Top scorers for Salem so far this year are Brian, Kelly, Appelisan and Lanney. The have tallied 45, 39, 36 and 28, respectively. Mutt Schaeffer is next with 17 points in four games. Appelisan has only played three games and has the highest average per try.

Coach Miller probably will start his regular five and will insert Bill Stouff and Ben Brudery in the guard post, if necessary. Norm Smith, now fully able to get around as fast as ever, may see action tomorrow, but his coordination with the other group is not yet at par. However, Miller hopes to give him a try tomorrow.

Mickey McGuire Schedule

No games Saturday.

BEAU JACK NAMED FIGHTER OF YEAR

Picked As the Season's Most Outstanding Ring Attraction

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—Ring magazine today named P.T. Sidney Walker of Augusta, Ga., better known as Beau Jack, as the "fighter of the year."

Walker fought six times in Madison Square Garden this year, attracting 166,433 spectators for an average of 17,739. The first five drew $460,610 for a $92,122 average, and the last—with Beau Jack and New York Lightweight Champion Bob Montgomery appearing "for free"—sold $35,864,300 in War Bonds.

He appeared in three Garden main events in March, attracting gates of $111,954 in losing his lightweight laurels to Montgomery; $132,823 in defeating Al (Bummy) Davis; and $87,802 in outpointing Juan Zarita of Mexico, holder of the N. B. A. lightweight crown.

Leading active fighters named by the Ring in a copyrighted story to be published in its February issue, were:

Heavyweight—Jimmy Bivins, Cleveland; light heavyweight, Lloyd Marshall, Sacramento, Calif.; middleweight, Holman Williams, Detroit; welterweight, Ray Robinson, New York; lightweight, Beau Jack, Augusta, Ga.; and U. S. Army featherweight, Willie Pep, Hartford, Conn.; bantamweight, Manuel Ortiz, El Centro, Calif.; flyweight, Jackie Patterson, Scotland.

Pep, Ortiz and Patterson were recognized as world champions of their classes. The other champs, all in the services and their titles "frozen," are: Heavyweight, Joe Louis, Detroit and Army; light heavyweight, Gus Lesnevich, Clinton, N. J. and Coast Guard; middleweight, Tony Zale, Gary, Ind.; and Navy; welterweight, Freddie Cochrane, Elizabeth, N. J., and Navy; lightweight, vacant.

Callanan Is Replaced

It has been said and written that Tennessee is being led to slaughter, and that's the case from where I sit, as Southern California bids for its eighth straight victory in the Tournament of Roses without its star of a year ago, George Callanan, out with a bad knee. Tailback Callanan's loss hurts, but by no means wrecks. Bob Morris is a speedy and capable replacement.

The Trojans have in Capt. Jim Hardy one of the more skillful passers and T quarterbacks and every advantage, including Navy and Marine trainees and tradition, easily could prevail by as many as five touchdowns.

Duke tackled the best, acquitted itself creditably. The Blue Devils certainly were the finest losing club in the country, finished like Whirlaway in the stretch. Eddie Cameron has stickout backs in Tom Davis and Gordon Carver and is strong in the middle. As in the case of Army against the Dukes, Alabama will have to pass and run outside to get anywhere in particular.

Like Tennessee, Alabama started from scratch following a year's layoff.

Grange Would Like To Be Different On Game Choice, But Fears Books Have Bowl Frays Picked Dead Right

BY RED GRANGE

PASADENA, Dec. 28.—Southern California is a 1-to-4 or 20-point favorite over Tennessee in the Rose Bowl on New Year's day.

Duke is given a two-touchdown margin over Alabama in the New Orleans Sugar Bowl.

Georgia Tech is judged a touchdown stronger than Tulsa in their rematch in the Miami Orange Bowl.

Oklahoma A. and M. is considered 20 points better than Texas Christian in the Dallas Cotton Bowl.

As much as I would like to be different, I fear the books have the correct slant.

They usually do, as a lot of people were convinced when they refused to string along with them and myself, after I warned what would happen to Navy in the Army game. I can't help but remind you that I called the big one right on the dot.

As for the most worthwhile of all New Year's attractions—the East-West Shrine hospital game at Kezar stadium, San Francisco—I like the East. For the very good reason that in this third war year little Andy Kerr, George Hauser and Bernie Bierman have the pick of more and superior athletes, led by the versatile and resourceful Les Horvath of Ohio State.

Callanan Is Replaced

It has been said and written that Tennessee is being led to slaughter, and that's the case from where I sit, as Southern California bids for its eighth straight victory in the Tournament of Roses without its star of a year ago, George Callanan, out with a bad knee. Tailback Callanan's loss hurts, but by no means wrecks. Bob Morris is a speedy and capable replacement.

The Trojans have in Capt. Jim Hardy one of the more skillful passers and T quarterbacks and every advantage, including Navy and Marine trainees and tradition, easily could prevail by as many as five touchdowns.

Duke tackled the best, acquitted itself creditably. The Blue Devils certainly were the finest losing club in the country, finished like Whirlaway in the stretch. Eddie Cameron has stickout backs in Tom Davis and Gordon Carver and is strong in the middle. As in the case of Army against the Dukes, Alabama will have to pass and run outside to get anywhere in particular.

Like Tennessee, Alabama started from scratch following a year's layoff.

Horvath On Injured List With Bad Ankle

(By Associated Press)

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 28.—Les Horvath, Ohio State All-America halfback who reported late because of college examinations, is on the injured list with the 20th annual East-West football classic only five days away.

However, both Horvath, whose ankle is damaged, and Jack Mead, 205-pound end from Wisconsin who has a knee ailment, worked out with their East teammates in an indoor practice yesterday.

Francis Brogger, Michigan State wingman, was on the sidelines with an injured ankle.

The West players worked out in the rain yesterday and scheduled a full scrimmage session today. The West coaches discovered they had a good field goal kicker in Jim Kerker, 270-pound Missouri tackle.

Russians Study In U. S.

NEW YORK—Eighteen men and three women from the Soviet union are enrolled at Columbia university, studying extension courses in English, American history and government. United States geography and American life and problems. The group, several of whom are war veterans, arrived in this country via Seattle and plan to leave in the spring.

Durham has the Navy and Marine margin, figures to prevail by three touchdowns.

Hurricanes Can't Take It

Tulsa pours it on, but can't take it.

While the Golden Hurricanes have no Glenn Dodds or Clyde LeForce in their backfield this trip, not once have they failed to score enough to win two or three games.

On the two occasions when they bumped into class, however, Oklahoma A. and M. and Iowa Pre-Flight rolled up 46 and 47 points, respectively, on successive weekends.

Georgia Tech has a perfect record in four Bowl ventures. Tulsa dropped two of three. The Engineers have met the sterner competition.

They won in the Sugar Bowl, 20-18, a year ago, and I look for them to repeat in another thriller.

Texas Christian prevailed in what this year was a rather weak South-west Conference by playing them close to the vest, but that will be difficult to do against the brilliant Bob Fenimore and his Oklahoma A. and M. company. Everything, including comparative scores, points to considerable daylight between these teams.

Don't celebrate too much the night before, enjoy the game even if it's only over the air, and have a Happy New Year!

RAISING OLD GLORY IN RECORD TIME

ON THE BEACHHEAD AT LEYTE ISLAND—When the Coast Guard boat crews, who landed Army assault troops on Leyte, came within 500 yards of shore, they spotted two large American flags flying from cocoanut trees.

Ashore, they learned an Army officer in the first wave had disregarded any possible Japanese beach fire and rushed inland to secure the flags to the shattered trees, thus creating something of a speed record for raising Old Glory over enemy-held territory.

The War Today

By DeWitt MacKenzie

war remains in anticipation—a full-dress Russian offensive against the Nazi Vistula line in Poland. That might change the complexion of things quickly by putting the Nazis between two mighty milstones. It is unlikely that the Reich could long withstand wholesale major offensives on both eastern and western fronts. A Red assault against the Vistula may soon complement the magnificent Muscovite drives into Hungary and Slovakia.

We mustn't overlook that the Nazis appear to have committed their full strength to the counter-offensive in the west. They've gambled most everything. Sure sources of information agree that the Reich's rapidly deteriorating resources are vastly inferior in all categories to those of the Allies. That's equally true of manpower and materiel.

It's amazing to see them dig up sufficient strength for their present drive. As a matter of fact their attack likely would have died at birth had it not been for somebody fumbling the American military intelligence. We were caught off guard and heads may roll for that.

The length of the Japanese war depends largely on when peace comes to Europe. Many experts figure it may take 12 months or so to finish the Japs off after Germany surrenders. May be that guess is as good as any, though personally I don't indulge in prophesy unless I hold a straight flush.

Conclusion of the European war will release vast striking-power to be employed against the Nipponese. Already the British have moved big supplementary naval forces into the Orient. More than 2,000,000 Indian troops are trained and under arms, waiting for possible employment in reclaiming Burma and the East Indies.

The Allied position is good for the first onslaught. We've broken the back of the conquest of the Philippines. We've established bases from which we are hammering at Japan's lifeline to her Indonesian supplies. We are reaching Tokyo and other Jap cities almost daily with Super-Japresses. We've closed in about Nippon to a point where we can carry out amphibious landings both in south-eastern China and Japanese territory. Despite China's terrible weakness, the Allied position is secure.

No wonder the Mikado in his current imperial rescript bemoans the fact that "the war situation is becoming more critical."

U. S. Sub Seawolf Is Long Overdue

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—The U. S. submarine Seawolf is overdue from patrol and presumed lost.

The Navy's announcement today said the vessel was under command of Lt. Comdr. Albert M. Bonnier, of White Plains, New York, who is listed as missing.

The 1,500-ton submersible was of a class which normally carries a complement of 62 men. No announcement was made of the number lost, but the Navy said next of kin of all casualties had been informed.

The Seawolf brought to 34 the total of United States submarines lost during the war—4 sunk, 28 overdue and presumed lost, and two destroyed to prevent capture. It was the 239th naval vessel of all types lost since the beginning of the war.

GERMAN

northwest of Eichtersmach. Von Rundstedt's hopes of expanding his salient westward had been blasted by two developments. The first was the push northward by a powerful armored force which blasted its way to a link-up with the Bastogne garrison.

Bastogne had been denied the Germans for seven days by the stout-hearted Americans who although surrounded had replied "nuts" to an ultimatum demanding their surrender. The second development was a series of crushing tank and infantry battles in the Colles area in which the Germans collided head-on with strong Allied forces. After hanging on to the flanks of the German thrust for 10 days the Americans at last had headed off Von Rundstedt.

As a result the German commander was reported pulling back into the center of his bulge, a large part of his tanks supporting the force of perhaps 250,000 men in three armies with which he started his smash Dec. 16.

BUDAPEST LOOMS BEFORE RUSSIANS

Fall of Hungarian Capital Imminent As Enemy Falls Back

(By Associated Press)

MOSCOW, Dec. 28.—A doomed Nazi garrison reeled backwards in the smoke-filled streets of western Budapest today but clung with suicidal resistance to positions in the eastern sector of the capital.

A Berlin broadcast monitored in London said early today the German garrison in Budapest "has taken up positions on an inner defense ring of the capital" after several Russian penetrations of the German-Hungarian lines.

"The Russians are now attacking from the southeast, northeast and west," the broadcast said. "The German and Hungarian defenders were reported to have been denied the use of one of two remaining airports for evacuation as Soviet forces pounded toward the heart of the city."

With the Red air force completely master in the skies German transports operated only at night from this last field, near Pest, and the casualties were reported great.

Russian troops pushed across the eastern arm of the Danube north of Budapest yesterday, splitting the Nazi troops and driving part of them into the mountainous area in the great Danube bend. The remainder were pressed back into Buda, where Soviet units engaged them in house to house fighting.

a landing ship afire and blew up a gunboat.

Manila's airfields, MacArthur disclosed today, were blasted Tuesday for the fifth straight day by land-based bombers with a fighter escort. The Japanese airforce raided Yank ground positions on Mindoro in coordination with the enemy naval strike. Enemy planes also struck there the night before, today's communique acknowledging "minor damage" and reporting three raiders downed.

Reports of ground action were limited to the killing of 827 more Japanese Tuesday in mop-up operations on the west coast of Leyte but extensive air action was reported throughout the Philippines and over islands to the south.

Liberators cratered Manila's Clark field while their gunners and escorting fighter planes shot down 13 out of 20 enemy interceptors. In three days, through Tuesday, 124 enemy planes have been shot out of the skies over that airfield.

Southward to Mindanao, airdromes were bombed, a harbor waterfront hit, a jetty destroyed, three small freighters, a coastal vessel and barge sunk.

Velez Rites Reminiscent Of Funeral For Valentino

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 28.—Lupe Velez, the vivacious movie star, was buried in her native Mexico City amid disorders reminiscent of those at the Rudolph Valentino funeral in New York nearly two decades ago. At the Panteon De Dolores (graveyard of sorrows) Lupe's sister, Reyna, an actress in Mexico, fainted and fell into the crushing crowd after the casket was lowered into the grave. Several persons stepped upon her before she could be rescued.

Religious rites, denied Miss Velez by the Catholic church in Los Angeles, were performed here. Police were unable to control the crowds at the cemetery. In a mad race for vantage places, monuments were knocked over, and many persons were slightly injured. Hundreds scrambled atop a crypt near the grave to view the ceremony. Others were kicked, stepped upon and crushed.

men reported. Lt. Col. William McDowell, Brady, Tex., an observer, said that on the return trip the smoke could be seen from 80 miles away.

A Washington communique said fires were started in the big Musashima plant.

The Nipponese touched off smudgepots to lay a smokescreen, but the attackers described the technique as unsuccessful.

The raid caught the Japanese parliament in session, and the Domei news agency said the lawmakers ate their lunch before entering air raid shelters. Tokyo said 50 Superforts participated in the raid, claiming nine were shot down, and another five probably. It acknowledged some damage to industrial areas.

It was the fifth time in a little more than a month that the B-29s had hammered Tokyo in force.

GRECIAN REGENCY PLAN BEFORE KING

LONDON, Dec. 28.—Prime Minister Churchill and Foreign Secretary Eden have left Athens for London to urge King George II of Greece to approve creation of a Grecian reGENCY. BBC's correspondent in Athens reported today.

Warring Greek political factions were agreed today to formation of a reGENCY in a step towards peace, as British military authorities reported a withdrawal of some ELAS forces from Athens to positions on highways leading into the city.

A majority of the conferees expressed favor of an immediate reGENCY while a minority favored postponement. Archbishop Damaskinos, the chairman, announced.

An Allied force headquarters communique said insurgent troops which entered the city appeared to be evacuating and leaving the fighting in the "built-up" areas to the original Athens ELAS corps, concentrated at Piraeus and in the northern and southern districts of city.

The communique said the process of clearing Athens of the ELAS was progressing slowly but satisfactorily. A sniper's bullet narrowly missed Prime Minister Churchill yesterday morning as he stood in front of the British embassy.

Missing

Ask Russia Explain Oil Field Seizure

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—The United States and Great Britain are asking Russia to explain in detail the removal of equipment from the oil fields of Romania to the Soviet Union.

Officials here said no criticism of Russia's action is implied. Washington and London are merely trying to get at the facts of a very confused situation, it was explained.

Inquiries have been made in Moscow by British Ambassador Sir Archibald Clark Kerr and American Ambassador W. Averill Harriman. The Soviet union's initial answer, regarded here as incomplete, is said to have given assurances that American and British interests in the oil fields would be protected and not have claimed that the equipment removed was German.

German Situation Continues Critical, Stimson Declares

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—War Secretary Stimson said today the latest news from France is favorable, but that the overall situation of the western front "continues critical."

Up to now, Stimson told his news conference, the Germans have been unable to expand the base of their salient. The enemy soon must endeavor to do this, he said, because "time is now working against" him.

"War is not an easy game to play and you can't always win every battle," the secretary said, "but I am confident that we are winning and that time will reveal that this German throw of the dice will have disastrous consequences for him."

Stimson said the Nazi troops had penetrated some 50 miles westward. So long as any German column continues to advance, he added, it will "not be appropriate to say that the enemy has been contained or that the danger is over."

Stimson said American troops on the southern flank have smashed forward and that the German-controlled corridor had been narrowed to 20 miles. The German army, he said, has taken some hard blows, suffering many casualties in this offensive.

As an example, the secretary said,

FORCE YANKS BACK ON ITALIAN FRONT

(By Associated Press)

ROME, Dec. 28.—German forces are continuing their counter-attacks in the Serchio valley sector on the western flank of the Italian front and Fifth army troops have made further withdrawals in that area. Allied headquarters announced today.

The town of Barga, captured a month ago by the Fifth army, was enveloped in the German counter-assault that struck out on a six-mile front on each side of the Serchio.

Barga is a mile and a half east of the river and about 15 miles north of Lucca, capital of Lucca province.

The Nazi drive was supported by light artillery.

Eighth army troops in the Adriatic sector fanned out along the east bank of the Senio river and slashed into fortified German positions at Alfonsine, nine miles northwest of Ravenna.

Allied patrols ran into heavy German mortar fire in the area north of Bagnacavallo. South of that town, enemy strongpoints were being mopped up all the way to captured Faenza.

Germans taken prisoner in one sector told of two Panzer regiments in their area which suffered over 50 per cent casualties.
